With this approach, we are responding to current developments – not only in the fields of logistics, management and leadership, but also in society. The Key Competence Areas will create new connections between different fields and disciplines, as well as between scientific research and practice. We want to do our share to identify, contextualize, explain, and push the developments in these areas.

As such, KLU makes this particular expertise available to students, practitioners and the scientific community at large by developing its programs for teaching, executive education, and research training within the frame of the three Key Competence Areas.
PREPARATION PROGRAM

ONE-YEAR PROGRAM FOR STUDENTS WITH INTERNATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMAS WHO DO NOT MEET THE DIRECT ADMISSIONS REQUIREMENTS FOR GERMANY.

As the German Abitur (high school leaving certificate) is held to such a high standard, it is often quite difficult for international applicants to meet the equivalent. With international high school diplomas, direct entry is usually not an option. To bridge the gap, KLU offers students the opportunity to complete our Preparation Program (Studienkolleg).

INTERNATIONAL MANAGEMENT

Add value in an international environment. Go beyond contemporary business models and look at the world’s economy from an international perspective. With each year, the world becomes more connected creating a global economy. Products we use daily no longer come from local sources but are often shipped from all over the world. Germany’s yearly exports total up to more than one billion Euros. Companies in such a globalized environment need experts that are capable of handling international transactions. Managers with international backgrounds in marketing, accounting, finance, logistics and communications establish the connections between companies and international markets. They become responsible for their company’s operations abroad.

SUSTAINABLE MANAGEMENT

Help plan sustainable development on a global scale. Consumption of materials and resources, reduction of greenhouse gas emissions, human rights and health and safety regulations are, along with sustainability, fairness and solidarity, the key quality criteria of today’s economic activity. Customers and other stakeholders demand companies to behave and do business in a socially responsible way. An increasing number of brands and companies have begun campaigning for a better world, turning sustainability into a selling point. Sustainable management is now in demand more than ever before. In short, today’s companies not only want to be great, but they also need to be ethical.

SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

Plan, design and operate global supply chains. Supply Chain Managers (SCM) develop and oversee enormous international logistics flows of goods and information. Products we need and use on a daily basis, from electric toothbrushes to smart phones to cars, don’t just pop out of thin air. SCM steers the overall process, from supply to storage to delivery, meticulously coordinating every aspect, while keeping environmental issues, such as carbon or waste reduction in mind. At the same time, they must react to new technologies, such as the Internet of Things, where objects are constantly connected and able to exchange data with each other. This technology promises enormous advancements and increased efficiency. Access to the most recent data allows for making data-supported decisions, helping companies to be better, faster and more reliable than their competition.

DIGITAL MANAGEMENT & INNOVATION

Help shape the digitalization of processes. New technologies, digital platforms and programs are changing business. Data has become the world’s newest natural resource and knowing how to use it can be a game changer. Companies that quickly derive insights from data and infuse analytics into everything they do can gain a competitive advantage. But who designs and supports the digital transformation of companies? Who coordinates the necessary steps and ensures cooperation between people, systems, and data? Experts in the field of digital management & innovation provide the link between economic performances and intelligent IT infrastructures.

YOUR SEMESTER ABROAD

Impressions by Pauline Zweilhaus, Julia Harbarth, Robert Marten Rings and Johanna Schönfeld. Taken in Bordeaux/France, Nantes/France and Lima/Peru.
"For my semester abroad, I decided to go to Bordeaux in France. With the French I learned at school and a lot of expectations in my backpack, I started my journey. The Kedge Business School offered a large variety of subjects with professors from all kinds of industries who presented good case studies, and they even managed to organize a fun wine tasting at 8 a.m. for us after our Easter break! The diverse student associations were always up to something, and in the morning when entering the building the bisous with friends from all over the world created a welcoming atmosphere. I’ve always had a secret crush on France, which is why the semester living and studying there was like a dream come true for me. It felt like a vacation rather than studying. Now that the five months have flown by like a blink of an eye I can say that my time in Bordeaux enabled me to improve my language skills and develop academically and personally. I will always happily look back on this highlight during my studies at KLU! A bientôt."
